

Nick Schnebelen – Multiple Blues Music Award Winner

From 2018 to 2022, Nick Schnebelen and his band have been touring North America as the opening act for George Thorogood and the Destroyers. Nick clearly has the blues-rock power to fill that slot with regular standing ovations. When not supporting Thorogood, Nick headlines his own tours in USA and Europe. Nick got his introduction to the worldwide Blues community in 2008, along with siblings Danielle and Kris, as a founding member of the Kansas City band Trampled Under Foot. They overwhelmed the competition to win that year's International Blues Challenge, with Nick claiming the Albert King Award for "Best Guitarist". The band later won the "Contemporary Blues Album" Blues Music Award. Nick left the band in 2014 and proceeded to release three original albums under his own name. Nick and his band along with some special guests have recently completed his next in studio recording, "What Key Is Trouble In?", soon TBA for early 2023 release. This new music is the follow up to Nick's critically acclaimed 2019 release, "Crazy All By Myself." on Vizztone.
